ORGANISERS

The organising committee comprise Giorgio Albertini (Chair), Claudia Condoluci, Fabrizio Fea, David Felce, Manuela Galli, Matthew Janicki, Giampaolo La Malfa, and Patricia Noonan Walsh.

Isabelle Biondi staffs the 3rd IASSID-Europe Rome Conference Secretariat and may be contacted by email: <iassid_rome-congress@alice.it>.

INVITATION

On behalf of IASSID and the conference's organizing committee, we are invite you to participate in the 3rd IASSID-Europe Conference, which will be held in Rome from the 20th to the 23rd of October, 2010.

The IASSID-EUROPE Conference is dedicated to children and adults with intellectual disabilities and their families. Their lives are the concrete reality that our research attempts to illuminate and distil. The breadth of aetiological, developmental, environmental and cultural factors, together with the diversity of clinical considerations involved, means that our research has to take a multidisciplinary approach and a "lifespan" perspective. People with intellectual disabilities differ and change over time, and how individuals grow emotionally and behaviourally needs to be understood.

The aim is to provide the right supports and environmental "contexts" that promote the development of the individual and his or her family from infancy to childhood, to adolescence, to young adulthood, to maturity and to old age. Such a broad aim necessitates multi-disciplinary understanding. The centrality of the individual within the goal of promoting quality of life warrants a family and person-centered approach. The individual is part of society and the approach taken must also draw upon the involvement of people's communities at all ages and stages of their lives.

Hence, the theme of the conference is important. We have to integrate knowledge across biological, psychological, sociological and educational disciplines and have understanding in one area shape the development of knowledge in others, so that there is a continuous evolution of understanding about the "whole person". This is the main goal of IASSID and the explicit goal of the 3rd IASSID-Europe Conference. So, to further this goal, we invite you to come and be part of Rome 2010.

Rome is a wonderful city, full of charm. Its cultural associations are famous worldwide – in particular the "ottobrate romane", the best time of the year to be in Rome. We are sure that all this, and the conference, will make your visit to Rome most enjoyable.

Giorgio Albertini

Fabrizio Fea

Giampaolo La Malfa

PUBLICATION OF ABSTRACTS

The abstracts of all submissions accepted for the conference as part of symposia, individual papers or posters, or as roundtable discussions will be published in the Journal of Applied Research in Intellectual Disabilities.

(www3.interscience.wiley.com/journal/118490119/home?CRETRY=1&SRETRY=0)

Conference Timetable

The programme is designed to highlight scientific knowledge and methods across the breadth of issues that concern scientists, practitioners, family members and people with intellectual disabilities. The beginning session of each morning and afternoon will comprise two invited plenary addresses. Together, these will summarise knowledge in 12 areas. Also in each morning and afternoon, 5 x 8 parallel sessions are scheduled for oral presentations of empirical findings and research reviews. Poster sessions will run in parallel with oral paper sessions. The balance of paper and poster presentation will depend on the demand for each mode of presentation.

Refreshment Breaks

Coffee, tea and soft drinks will be available during mid-morning and mid-afternoon breaks. Lunch will be provided. The Conference Dinner is not included in the registration fee but may be booked on registration.

Simultaneous Translation

The official language is English but simultaneous translation in Italian will be available during the plenary presentations.

Modes of Presentation

Delegates may present their research in several different formats:

Symposia (1 hour - 3 presentations of 15 minutes + 15 minutes for discussion)

A collection of 3 papers presenting the results of different studies on a common research topic. Each should be presented by a different person. Each author should submit their paper online following the instructions on the next page. The symposium co-ordinator must send an email with the titles and author details for each paper in the symposium to felce@cf.ac.uk.

Oral Papers (A presentation of 15 minutes + 5 minutes for discussion)

A paper presenting the results of a study on a particular topic. Papers will be grouped according to topic. Individuals should submit title and abstract details online following the instructions on the next page.

Posters (A printed and illustrated summary of a presentation to be posted among a collection of similarly themed posters)

Individuals may present their research in the form of a poster. IASSID considers posters to be as important as oral papers. Posters allow for more extended discussion with delegates and may be preferred by presenters whose first language is not English. Posters should be attended by at least one author who can address questions related to the poster's content to interested delegates. Individuals should submit title and abstract details online following the instructions on the next page. Size and appearance specifications for the posters will be sent to authors.

Instructions for Submitting Symposium/Paper/Poster Abstracts

Abstracts must be in English.

In submitting an abstract, you will be asked for the following information:

Contact Information: Please specify your name (the submitting author), institutional affiliation, email address and contact details.

Abstract Title: This should be brief (no more than 100 characters + spaces) but clearly indicate the content to be presented.

Topic: The conference is to be organised in 11 topics (see next page). Please specify which of the 11 topics best fits your symposium, paper or poster. (Use the pull down list on the website to do this.)

Presentation Method: Specify whether: (a) Oral communication part of symposium, (b) Oral communication stand alone, (c) Poster presentation. (Use the pull down list on the website to do this.)

Student Papers: Students who would like to present a paper in a symposium dedicated to student papers should tick the box on the website to indicate this.

Author(s): Please indicate the first and last name of each author as well as their role (presenting author, submitting author, co-author...).

Presenter's Email and Affiliation: Please indicate the email address and affiliation of the presenting author ONLY. The email addresses of speakers will be reproduced in the abstract book to permit and encourage delegates to contact presenters afterwards.

Abstract: This is structured using the subheadings: Aim, Method, Results, Conclusions. Overall, it should be no more than 1500 characters with spaces.

Terminology: Please refer to people with intellectual disabilities, rather than people with mental retardation or mental handicap, or the intellectually disabled, mentally retarded, mentally handicapped etc.

For symposia only: Notify David Felce by email (felce@cf.ac.uk) of the titles and authors of the three papers in the symposium. Please also provide a brief Title for the symposium (up to 6 words) and give the initials, surname and affiliation of a person who has agreed to be the Moderator of the symposium.

Submission deadline: 15th March, 2010

How to submit your abstract(s): Click on the link for abstract submission under the IASSID-Europe 2010 conference on the IASSID website (www.iassid.org). This will transfer you to the abstract submission process. Follow the instructions. The submission fields have been formatted so that abstracts cannot be longer than the limits described above. It is necessary to prepare your abstract(s) in advance so that these requirements are met. There is no spellchecker on the website submission system. Spelling should be checked before submission in the word processing format you use to prepare your abstract.

Abstract Title: Evaluation of the Dissemination of Active Support Training in Staffed Community Residences

Topic: Policy, populations, community living & service systems

Presentation Method: Oral communication stand alone

Authors: D. Felce¹, K. Lowe, E. Jones

Presenter's Email: felce@cf.ac.uk

Presenter's Affiliation: ¹Welsh Centre for Learning Disabilities, School of Medicine, Cardiff University, Cardiff, Wales, UK

Abstract: Aim: The aim was to replicate Active Support, a staff training intervention shown previously to increase the extent to which staff in community residences for adults with severe mental retardation provided opportunities and effective support to residents to enable them to participate in activities. Method: Training was conducted in 38 community residences, involving 303 staff and 106 persons with mental retardation. Changes in the extent of planned activity, involvement in domestic, social and community activities, attention from staff and engagement in activity were evaluated. Results: Active Support resulted in participants having more planned activity within the home, receiving significantly more assistance and being significantly more engaged in activity. Significant correlations between participant abilities, receipt of assistance and levels of engagement were found. Conclusions: Such findings replicated those of the earlier experimental demonstration. Active Support was found to be of greater benefit to people with lower adaptive behaviour and to have a diminishing value for people with higher adaptive behaviour, implying that it does not have universal application and that its implementation should be matched to the support needs of residents.

All presenters and symposium moderators must register for the Conference by 31st May, 2010 in order for their abstracts to be included in the programme and published in the Journal of Applied Research in Intellectual Disabilities
